To explain the problem in more detail, I've created a small dataframe with two columns, such that the first column contains some numbers and the second column contains a character vector. I've appended a third column with indices from the first column. In the end I want to substitute the second column (the character vector) with specific values from the third column (which represent the indices for the rows that I want to replace). This is how my example data looks like: my_data
