Returning north on Via G Moccagatta, take a right into Via Silvano Oreglio and then a right into Via Luigia and you are in the center of nearby Citadella, home of the office of President Sergio Mattarella. Casalborgone Casalborgone was once the home of the great D'Annunzio. As head of the Avanti Popolo group, D'Annunzio celebrated himself by embarking on a love affair with a banker's daughter, Ettore Fedele. She died suddenly in 1900. After her funeral, he had her body conveyed to his home, Casalborgone, from which it was moved in 1944 to a chapel of the Arconati Spese family in Chieri, near Turin. Here it was placed in the mausoleum to be preserved forever. The chapel and its crypt were the subject of a fire in 1988, but the mausoleum was spared, thanks to a system of defences to protect it from fire. A characteristic feature of the chapel is the presence of a number of antique furnishings from the time of D'Annunzio, including oriental vases of Carrara marble. The painter and poet Francesco Paolo Michetti (1859–1940) was born in Casalborgone. References External links
