Note Of course, it's not only photographs that need to be edited. Virtually every digital image you create needs to be tweaked. Photoshop provides a wide variety of tools for making digital images look their best. You can't have too many enhancements when it comes to applying effects, adding text, creating new layers, and adding filters. Also, the tools in Photoshop are very powerful. If you work with images a lot, it pays to invest in a powerful graphics tablet and a keyboard, so you can adjust layers more easily. You can use a mouse, but adding layers and moving them around is much easier with a keyboard and a tablet. The most basic task in Photoshop is placing a single object on a background. After you do that, you start making the background look a lot different. Perhaps it's a sepia tone, but one that's lighter than the object. Or it's dark, or it's made of several colors, or it's transparent. It's easy to manipulate things, but it doesn't always make sense to make a photo look different. Is it possible to make a photograph of a landscape look like a photograph of the Grand Canyon? Well, yes, you can always tweak the image to make it look something other than what it is, but if that's your only aim, you'll never get anywhere. So learning to understand what makes a photograph work in its natural state is a good place to start learning about image-editing in Photoshop.

A randomized phase III trial of accelerated epirubicin and cyclophosphamide versus epirubicin and methotrexate in patients with metastatic breast cancer. This study was undertaken to define the efficacy and toxicity of a total dosage of epirubicin/cyclophosphamide/methotrexate accelerated combination chemotherapy in metastatic breast cancer. Comparison of a standard methotrexate/epirubicin/cyclophosphamide (E/M/C) arm with an accelerated E/M arm was the principal objective. A total of 149 patients with metastatic breast cancer were randomized to receive either epirubicin (E, 100 mg/m²) and cyclophosphamide (C, 600 mg/m²) every 3 weeks for 24 weeks or epirubicin (E, 100 mg/m²) and methotrexate (M, 40 mg/m²) every 4 weeks for 24 weeks. Patients were randomized to receive either trial arm. Neutropenic fever was a major dose-limiting toxicity for both the E/M and E/M/C arms. Other grade 3-4 toxicities in patients receiving the E/M/C combination included: infections, diarrhea, alopecia, and hematologic toxicity.

Treatment delay (median: 37 days for E/M/C arm, 67 days for E/M arm) and discontinuation due to toxicity (E/M/C, 16%; E/M, 23%) were comparable for both arms. In the E/M arm, there was a higher incidence of second malignant neoplasms (E/M, 19% vs. E/M/C, 6%) and a trend towards a higher survival (E/M, median, 12 months vs. E/M/C, median, 11 months). In contrast, in the E/M/C arm, there was a higher complete response rate (E/M/C, 62% vs. E/M, 45%) and a longer median overall survival (E/M/C, median, 19 months vs. E/M, median, 10 months). Based on these results, the E/M/C combination is effective for treating patients with metastatic breast cancer, although toxicity is considerable. The E/M combination may be an acceptable alternative if the increased costs, medical and personnel time, and hospital burden associated with the accelerated schedule are offset by a

. Indeed I may run against Warren as many Americans are now doing. Warren is also collecting cash to run for president. Her campaign says it has raised $13 million so far. It is the middle class who will be paying the price for liberal policies which will not work. Saturday, October 6, 2012 Bill Clinton went down in flames in 1992 when he said some pretty harsh truths about Hillary and Bill. I am sure you will be surprised to hear that his comments were proven to be true. • Bill said Bill and Hillary were ignorant. • He said that they thought they were smarter than the public. • He said that it didn't matter how much they raised in the donations, it was wrong and immoral for them to take them. • He said that they thought they had done a really good job raising money in 1992. • He said that they would never be the "next" ones. • He said that he felt betrayed by his "best friend" and former mentor. But really people were happy to see Bill Clinton go down in flames. This was after the Whitewater investigation. The "ignorant, stupid and shallow Clintons" were sent packing. Well yesterday it was reported that Obama was put on the spot this week. He has refused to comment on the Clinton's statements. In fact we are told the most powerful man in the world has been bought off to stay quiet and out of the mess. The reports are that he has been given a very generous piece of real estate on an island in the St. Lawrence river. It's a nice place to live but the cost of living is very high. This so called "real estate" is a 25 room house with a grand piano in the living room. I'm sure it will be very nice when it's all finished. Of course there's no plumbing yet. No running water. And no pool. There is no sign of work being done on the estate yet. But the price of housing is very high at the moment, so perhaps all of these "luxury" amenities will come in time. Perhaps the Obama family will get used to the high prices and nice surroundings? "Obama didn't say if the Clintons are being tipped off about the investigation or were explicitly warned not to talk to
